Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 06 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Showers easing, some fog overnight. Becoming fine and warm Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry and warm overnight for many. Northern and western areas may see a few heavy showers linger for a time, fading but leaving areas of cloud in their wake. Low cloud and fog also developing in some southern coastal districts. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Monday:
A dry day, with areas of low cloud and fog mainly affecting some coastal districts gradually clearing, leaving most areas fine with warm sunshine. Feeling rather humid, with light winds. Maximum temperature 25 deg C (77 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Mainly fine and rather warm, with sunny spells developing after some cloudier starts. Probably more cloud around after midweek, although some brighter spells still likely. Winds remaining light.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.